

Centre where Adolescents Learn to Love and Serve (CALLS)

Centre where Adolescents Learn to Love and Serve (CALLS) is a learning institution that was established in 1994 with the primary function to provide training services for less fortunate youths who did not start or complete high school level education. Operations at CALLS is inclusive of an Early Childhood Development Centre, amongst other services. CALLS provides the Caribbean Certificate of Secondary Level Competence (CCSLC) and, in recent years, the centre has reformed to offer technical training and certification to equip youths with skills to become gainfully employed or self-employed. Through partnership with SkYE Caribbean, CALLS will train several young men and women with skills to improve their livelihoods.
